The door design is confusing. You do not know if you should push or pull the door to open it.

This set up is very impractical. You have to go all the way around in order to just come down.
The rings serve no purpose, and they block light.

There is no backing for a middle person to sit in this chair.
No arm rest on the left.

In the case of an emergency, when this is needed, this should be easier to access and use. It should just be one simple quick step. Easy to figure out.
You need to place your hands in an EXACT location for it to work. Or else it will turn off in the middle of washing your hands and you spend the next 5 minutes trying to turn it on again.

The main staircase is not continuous. You have to walk around on each floor to get to the staircase that leads to the next floor.
Bad location for a bench. No one really sits here. There is no sense in having it in this location.

This should not be part of the bulletin board. It takes up a spot that could be used to hang something up.
