Discussion Visualization (Example: Digg Story)

Note: The many other threads of this discussion are not included in order to keep this diagram clean.

The only sub-posts that are displayed are ones directly replying to the post you are currently viewing.

The greener a post, the more favorably it was rated (and the opposite for red). Gray posts are rated so negatively that you have to click on them to view them.

A post box’s size depends on the length of the content (to a certain limit, as shown by this first post).

Posts besides the currently “focused” one are translucent. Focus can be shifted by clicking. This will also expand any sub-threads associated with that newly focused post.

Example: http://digg.com/comedy/You_should_never_ask_for_help_on_the_internet

CS 465
17 Sep 2008
Jason Chen
jchen45