I was using the facebook wall post to categorize what people post in the facebook wall. There are four categories: birthday, bored, couple chat, and say “hi” messages that users post in the wall. I also setup the size of the circle based on number of post: larger the circle, more message posted. Also the center circle indicates how people might felt about the messages that they received. For example, people who are in “relationship” might feel more important about the messages that they received from the loved ones. I also placed one of the example posts that people posted in the facebook based on the categorization.
