Design:
Description:

It looks pretty like a scouter from “Dragon Ball” animation. It can scroll up or down as the user look upward or downward. It makes a call to a person when the user stares one of the names on the list. Also, user can makes a call by the voice recognition technology if he or she says a name with touching a part that covering an ear. The users can share his/her number with other people with select “wireless-transfer” option. It is not simply a phone. It is multi-purpose machine. It supports other functionality such as navigation and portable music player. The machine design is motivated from the news about a research that mouse pointer moves as eyes move.